Ronika Alexander-Parrish, MEd, US Medical Director, Population Health Innovation and Value, Janssen Pharmaceuticals, Inc. Leads Janssen's Global Vaccines Medical Development. Pfizer.

Ronika "Ronni" Alexander-Parrish is a Medical Director in U.S. Medical Affairs at Pfizer, where she leads medical strategy, leadership engagement, and cross-functional alignment for the company's pneumococcal vaccine portfolio, including PREVNAR 20 and its pediatric formulation.

Alexander-Parrish began her biopharma career in women's health and spent more than a decade as a Clinical Scientist supporting Pfizer's oncology portfolio, including work in immunotherapy and early clinical development lifecycle. She has also led medical affairs strategies supporting antiviral therapies.

Alexander-Parrish holds a master's degree in education from Harvard University and a bachelor's degree in biology from Pfizer, she led clinician research initiatives at Wayne State University and served as a public health nurse with the Detroit Department of Health.

With more than 20 years of experience, Alexander-Parrish brings a perspective shaped by frontline clinical practice, academic research, and global vaccine development. She is based in Pfizer's New York City headquarters. Pfizer's Oncology Research Unit (ORU) is dedicated to Vaccines Medical Development and is currently pursuing a DrPH at Morgan State University

Uche Blackstock, MD, Founder and Chief Executive Officer, Advancing Health Equity

Dr. Uche Blackstock is a physician, author, and changemaker committed to ending the harm caused by inequitable systems and practices. She is the founder and CEO of Advancing Health Equity, a national consulting firm that helps organizations design and implement practical, data-driven strategies to address the healthcare and public health inequities that have been laid bare by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Recognized by TIME 100 as its inaugural TIME100 H Health list, Dr. Blackstock is also the New York Times bestselling author of Legacy: Lessons in Love, Life, and Medicine from a Doctor's Family of Firsts. Her debut book, MD, Interrupted, intertwines her personal story with a powerful call to action for conversations on trust, leadership, and justice in health. A dynamic and passionate speaker, she has delivered keynotes for the Aspen Ideas Festival, the Milken Institute, and the Forbes Under 30 Summit.

Dr. Blackstock is a graduate of Yale University and Yale School of Medicine. She is board-certified in Internal Medicine and is a Fellow of the American College of Physicians. Dr. Blackstock currently lives in Atlanta, Georgia, with her husband and two children.

Nancy Bostrom, Senior Director, Global Operations & Partnerships, Sanofi

Nancy Bostrom brings over 15 years of combined experience driving business transformation, operational excellence, and digital innovation across the pharmaceutical and healthcare industries. She is known for her ability to align global and regional stakeholders, streamline complex processes, and implement data-driven strategies that enhance efficiency and scalability. Nancy has served as the Director of Communications for Student Veterans of America.

Chanea Browning, Chief Operating Officer, Caregiver Action Network

Chanea Browning is the COO at Caregiver Action Network. His previous work includes executive leadership roles at Pfizer and Merck, where he led a variety of nonprofit clients in the military and veteran community, and oversaw a portfolio of more than 100 employees. Chanea's career is characterized by a commitment to improving the lives of caregivers and veterans. He served as the Director of Communications for Student Veterans of America.

Caroline DeLeeghenere, Program Director, Patient and Community Engagement, Duke Clinical Research Institute, Duke Health System

Following a transformative experience in the pediatric ICU with her son, Caroline DeLeeghenere began her career in healthcare. She is a dedicated volunteer and patient advocate who has served in a variety of leadership roles, leading to her service on the Executive Committee of the Board of Directors for Parent Support Network of North Carolina.

Over the past 10 years, Caroline has become a trusted voice in the field, now speaking at many of the nation's premier conferences and events. She was recognized as a Duke Health Champion and the Association's Guest for Quality Prize Contributor and is the Director of Patient and Family-Centered Care for the Association for Clinical Research Professionals. She is also a member of the Duke Health Speakers Bureau and Duke Health Advisory Council.

In recognition of the impact, Caroline was selected as the university's 2019 commencement speaker, where she was also awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree.

Alayna Ellison, Ed.D., Mac., C.H.E.S., VP, Strategic Partnerships, Alayna Ellison

Alayna Ellison, Ed.D., MSc, CHES, brings more than two decades of experience advancing health equity and leading initiatives with national-scale initiatives and innovative program development. She has worked with a wide range of partners, including the CDC, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the Kaiser Permanente Institute for Health, researchers, communication strategists, biotechnology developers, and policy leaders, to generate and implement evidence-based solutions to complex challenges.

Her career spans corporate, nonprofit, nongovernmental, hospital-based, and community settings. Dr. Ellison's work has been featured in Forbes, Fortune, and Time, and she has delivered keynotes, scientific presentations, and testimony to audiences ranging from community groups to Congress. She has led development, implementation, and long-term sustainability of health education programs that elevate community voices and center lived experience. Dr. Ellison is a graduate of Columbia University and the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health. She is a Certified Health Education Specialist and a Fellow of the American Academy of Health Behavior.

David Fagerbaum, MD, MBA, MSc, Co-Founder and President, Every Cure

David Fagerbaum, MD, MBA, MSc, is Co-Founder and President of Every Cure and a physician-scientist at the University of Pennsylvania where he is a Fellow in the Perelman School of Medicine and the Wharton School. He has been building a drug-finding engine that he believes thanks to a repurposed treatment for discovered and described in his book Hacking Hippocrates (Harper Collins, 2021). Every Cure is a nonprofit that

More repurposed treatments for cancers and rare diseases and co-founded Every Cure to unlock repurposed treatments for cancers and rare diseases and co-founded Every Cure to unlock

One of the youngest ever awardees of multiple top NIH and FDA grants, Dr Fagerbaum has published in Nature, Science, Nature Medicine, Nature Biotechnology, Cell, Cell Systems, JAMA, and The Lancet. He has served on the Journal of Clinical Investigation's Editorial Board and as a reviewer for Science, Nature Medicine, Nature Biotechnology, Nature Communications, and PLOS Biology. He has been a Boston Celtics Hoops for Science Award alongside Nobel Laureates Kaitlin Kerrin and Oliver Smithies, a Siemens Competition Finalist, and a Regeneron Science Talent Search Scholar. He graduated summa cum laude from Yale University with a BS in Molecular Biophysics and Biochemistry and an MBA from The Wharton School. Beyond his coursework, David was a Division I college quarterback who finished second in the Ivy League in passing efficiency and led his team to a championship.

Tamika Felder, Founder and Chief Visionary Officer, Genovo, Inc.

Tamika Felder is a biotechnology executive, entrepreneur, and coach. As a cancer survivor, award-winning women's health advocate, and Chief Visionary Officer of Genovo, Inc., she is dedicated to empowering women to take control of their health, challenge the status quo in clinical research, and shine a spotlight on patient voices in health care. Named a "Cancer Survivor Champion" by Cancer Health, Tamika is a passionate speaker who has delivered keynotes and presentations at numerous industry events and has been featured in Forbes, Fox Business, and Bloomberg.

Patrick Gee, Ph.D., M.D., Founder & CEO/C-Medicine, Inc. & Pfizer Consulting, LLC

Dr. Patrick Gee is a health care consultant, community activist, and second-career author who brings a systems-level lens to social justice and public health. His first book, Dismantling Racism in Healthcare, explores how racism and implicit bias contribute to chronic illness and how to change the way we think about cardiovascular, renal, and metabolic care to better address complex social determinants of health and health disparities.

Dr. Gee holds a bachelor's degree, a master's in criminal justice, and a PhD in Justice, Law, and Criminology from Rutgers University. He also earned a medical degree from the University of Medicine & Dentistry of New Jersey. He is a Fellow of the American College of Physicians and a member of the Academy of Medical Educators. Dr. Gee is a former Chief Medical Officer for Horizon Blue Cross Blue Shield of New Jersey's Award for Volunteerism, and the NAMLC Dean Bell Award for Chapter Development.

Celina Gorre, MPH, MPA, Chief Executive Officer, WomenStrong

Celina Gorre is the CEO of WomenStrong, the leading nonprofit focused on patient advocacy and education in the cancer space and the first of its kind as well as the royalties that women face in their lived journeys. Prior to WomenStrong, Celina was the Chief Executive Officer of Cancer Support Community, a global nonprofit dedicated to providing support, education, and funding research in over 70 countries around the world. She also served as the Chief Executive Officer of Gilda's Club Worldwide, a cancer support community founded in honor of Gilda Radner.

Caitlin Grzeskowiak, PhD, Chief Research & Innovation Officer, Epilepsy Foundation

Caitlin Grzeskowiak, PhD, is the Chief Research and Innovation Officer at the Epilepsy Foundation, where she leads the organization's research strategy and innovation portfolio. Since joining the Foundation in 2020, Dr. Grzeskowiak has helped launch and scale the Epilepsy Innovation Institute, a public-private partnership dedicated to accelerating the development of new treatments and technologies for people with epilepsy.

Her work at the Epilepsy Foundation includes leading key epilepsy-focused initiatives including the Foundation's Research Roadmap, the Epilepsy Innovation Institute, the Epilepsy Foundation Research Fund, the Accelerator Course for epilepsy-focused startups, and the Epilepsy Foundation's New Therapies Initiative. She also oversees the Foundation's Research Grant Program and serves as the Executive Director of the Epilepsy Foundation's Professional Interest Society and Initiative of Research/Innovative. She completed her postdoctoral training at Stanford University School of Medicine, where she studied neurodevelopmental disorders and neuroimmune interactions in the developing brain. Dr. Grzeskowiak received her PhD in Neuroscience from the University of Virginia School of Medicine.

Devin Jopp, EdS, MS, Chief Executive Officer, Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology

Devin Jopp, EdS, MS, is the Chief Executive Officer for the Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology (APIC), the leading professional association for infection preventionists (IPs), with more than 16,000 members dedicated to protecting patients in more than 10 countries. APIC's mission is to create safer healthcare by effectively leading sources of infections and developing and implementing evidence-based practices to prevent infections and antimicrobial resistance in healthcare settings.

Dr. Jopp career has spanned over 25 years in nonprofit leadership and prior to coming to APIC in 2019, he was the Chief Executive Officer for the Arthritis Foundation. Before that, he was CEO of the YMCA of Middle Tennessee. His early work, one of the first in the country, was in the field of HIV/AIDS, and a top association leader. Dr. Jopp serves on the Forbes Nonprofit Council and on the Fast Company Executive Board. He is a graduate of Vanderbilt University and Harvard.

Dr. Jopp holds a bachelors of arts (B.A.) in computer information systems from the College of Notre Dame of Maryland, a master's degree (M.S.) in Human Resource Development from George Washington University and a graduate specialist degree (EdS) from George Washington University in executive leadership program in human and organizational learning. He currently serves on the Board of Directors for the National Health Council.

Anna Kennedy, Chief Mission Officer, EveryLife Foundation for Rare Diseases

A veteran leader in the rare disease patient-focused drug development space, Anna Kennedy has served as Chief Mission Officer since 2019. In her numerous, community-driven evidence development efforts including the Rare Disease Cures Accelerator-Data Analytics Platform, the Rare Disease Impact Framework, and the Rare Disease Cures Accelerator-Real World Evidence Demonstration Project, she has championed innovation that: Anna previously held leadership roles at Parent Project Muscular Dystrophy (PPMD) and Global Genes, and began her career in the biotech industry.

Kimberly LeBlanc, MS, CGC, Senior Director, Undiagnosed Disease Network (UDN) Coordinating Center

Kimberly LeBlanc is a genetic counselor and the Director of the Undiagnosed Diseases Network (UDN) Coordinating Center in the Department of Biomedical Informatics at Harvard Medical School. The UDN is a research program funded by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) of clinical sites and research laboratories dedicated to solving the most difficult-to-diagnose conditions. As part of the UDN Coordinating Center, Kimberly oversees the operations of the research program and leads

Gerry Lanigan, Pulmonary Hypertension, Patient Advocate + Speaker

Gerry Lanigan is a pulmonary hypertension patient advocate and Registered Nurse. Gerry has been a dedicated volunteer with the Pulmonary Hypertension Association (PHA) for over 15 years, serving as a Support Group Leader, Walk Team Captain, and Walk Committee Member. He has been a frequent speaker at PHA events, sharing his story online to raise awareness about rare disease, build community, and encourage others living with PH. Gerry has been featured in articles and videos published by PHA, including the PHA Heart and Lung Transplant Guide, and often humorous look at life with chronic illness—from diet changes

Hilary Morrison, MD, MPH, Principal, Drug & Biologic Therapies, Cerus Pre-Access

Hilary Marston, M.D., M.P.H. is a Principal at Cerus Pre-Access, supporting early-stage biotechnology companies in their launch efforts. She served as the inaugural Chief Medical Officer of the US Food and Drug Administration's Oncology Center of Excellence, where she led the development of the FDA's product development, regulatory, and incentive programs for rare disease product development and research participant

Amber McCracken, Senior Director, Programs and Impact, Patient Advocate Foundation

Amber McCracken is the Senior Director of Programs at the Patient Advocate Foundation, where she leads the development, implementation, creation, and promotion of education programs that are impactful, innovative, and meet the needs of patients, caregivers, and healthcare professionals. Amber has been with PAF since 2008 and has held various roles in Treta Initiative.

Amber has more than 20 years of experience managing domestic and international public health education programs at purpose-driven nonprofits, companies, and public relations agencies. She has developed and implemented programs that have reached millions of people and have won a variety of awards for performance, results in brand awareness, and the quality of materials and services provided to providers.

John W. O'Brien, PharmD, MPH, President and Chief Executive Officer, National Pharmaceutical Council

John W. O'Brien, PharmD, MPH, is President and Chief Executive Officer of the National Pharmaceutical Council (NPC), a leading voice in public policy with policy-relevant research on the value of patient access to medicines and innovative approaches to improve healthcare outcomes.

Dr. O'Brien's experience spanning the private and public sectors and government gives him a unique perspective on the business risk of public policy.

Prior to joining NPC, Dr. O'Brien was senior advisor to the U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services and served as the agency's chief operating officer and chief financial officer. He also served as the Administrator of the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), and served as a health policy advisor to the U.S. Senate.

Dr. O'Brien earned his doctorate in pharmacy at Nova Southeastern University. He started a degree in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania before switching to the School of Pharmacy and graduating at the University of Pittsburgh. He also earned a master's degree in public health at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. O'Brien has published extensively, senior fellow at the USC-Schaeffer Center for Health Policy and Economics, and a board member of the Academy of Managed Care Pharmacy, Alzheimer's Drug Discovery Foundation, and assistant professor of clinical and administrative sciences at the Notre Dame of Maryland University College of Pharmacy.

Dr. Alok Patel, MD, Clinical Assistant Professor and Medical Journalist, Loma Linda University School of Medicine

Dr. Alok Patel is an award-winning medical journalist, television personality, and clinical assistant professor at Loma Linda University School of Medicine. He is also the founder and CEO of Medical Mentors, a nonprofit dedicated to supporting children's hospitals' efforts to improve the quality of life for children with chronic illnesses and disabilities through communication strategies and philanthropic initiatives.

Outside the clinical world, Dr. Patel is a national medical contributor for ABC News, hosting the syndicated television show Medical Mentors, and has appeared on numerous other shows, including Good Morning America, including CNN, PBS, NBC, and Netflix, with recent hosting credentials from the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences, Emmy Awards, and Daytime Emmy Awards. Dr. Patel is also a contributor to Forbes, Fox News, and Huffington Post, and has been featured in Time magazine. His strategies secured guest host-level media coverage for his co-hosts the HBO Pet Protocol, which follows the medical show, The Pet Doctor, and the Netflix documentary series, Pet Vet, which follows the medical show.

Dr. Patel also serves as a key influencer for the American Academy of Pediatrics and on the executive committee for the AAP's committee on child life and pediatric

Melissa Penn, JD, MPH, Director, Patient Engagement, Research & Development, Novartis

Melissa Penn leads Patient Engagement R&D at Bayer Pharmaceuticals, where she leads a team that develops and executes cross-functional strategies to engage patients in drug development. She has more than 20 years of experience spanning rare and non-rare conditions, she has worked in a variety of roles, including patient advocacy, policy, and clinical research. Melissa started her career as a clinical research coordinator in the regulatory litigation representing NYC agencies, including the Department of Health, and Mental Hygiene and the NYC Housing Authority. She has built standing patient councils and scalable engagement frameworks that inform evidence generation and development strategy. She is a graduate of Columbia University and NYU.

Raj Ratwani, PhD, Vice President of Scientific Affairs, MedStar Health Research Institute; Director of the MedStar Health National Center for Human Factors in Healthcare; Associate Professor, Georgetown University School of Medicine

Raj Ratwani, PhD is Vice President of Scientific Affairs at the MedStar Health Research Institute, Director of the MedStar Health National Center for Human Factors in Healthcare, and Associate Professor at Georgetown University School of Medicine. His research focuses on patient safety, health care technology, and the safe use of artificial intelligence in clinical care. He has published extensively in the peer-reviewed literature on these topics and has given numerous invited talks and presentations on his work. Dr. Ratwani's research has influenced healthcare policy and practice and has been funded by a variety of federal agencies, including the FDA, where he is frequently featured in national news.

Anita Rao, MD, MPH, MSHP, FAAFP, Chief Executive Officer & Founder, Food & Health Collective

Dr. Anita Rao, MD, MPH, MSHP, FAAFP is a board-certified family medicine physician, national speaker, and entrepreneur with specialties in the health care of survivors of gender-based violence and in the intersection of food insecurity, nutrition, and chronic disease management.

She is the Founder, President, and CEO of Purp.fit, Health Foundation, a pioneering nonprofit organization that leverages the power of food and nutrition to improve health through its lower-cost model, survivors receive free, GPS-focused medical care, while clinical insights are collected to help drive policy and systems change. Dr. Rao is also a nationally recognized speaker and author.

Dr. Rao earned her medical degree from the University of Michigan and holds a Master of Public Health from Harvard and a Master of Science in Health Professions Education from Jefferson University in Pennsylvania. She is also a graduate of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation and Veterans Affairs Clinical Scholars Fellowship.

Susan Shenton, MBA, MSA, DHL, Founding Member, Patients for Patient Safety (PFPS) US

Susan E. Shenton, MBA, MSA, DHL, is President and CEO of Patients for Patient Safety US (PFPS US), a nonprofit she founded to improve patient safety through the Global Network for Sustainable Development in Medicine (GSDM), the Patient and Family Engagement Research (PFER) Program, and the Patient Safety Learning Lab. She is Director of Patient Engagement at the Center for Innovative Design and Research Institute (CIDRI) and the Fellowship for Patient Safety program at the World Health Organization (WHO). She is also a Patient Safety Champion for the Office of the President's Council of Advisors on Science and Technology (PCAST). She is a member of the co-chair of the National Academy of Medicine's (NAM) Patient Safety in the Era of AI Initiative. She is a member of the Patient Safety Movement Foundation's (PSMF) Board of Directors. She is a member of the Board of Directors of Leadership Network for Patient Safety.

Shenton had previously spent 12 years in patient advocacy impacted by adverse family experiences in healthcare, including the loss of her husband, Lieutenant Colonel Jeffrey Shenton, MD, and his 29 brothers in healthcare as well as thirteen hundred's 100 Most Powerful People in Healthcare.

Ken Stern, Founder & CEO, Journalism Funding Partners

Ken Stern is the Founder and Chair of the Longevity Project, which focuses on how social connection can help us live longer and build a more civil society. He is also the host of the award-winning podcast Century Mind and author of the book With the Best Intentions.

Stern is the best-selling author of three books, including his 2020 book, Loser Nation: How Exceptionalism Became a Mass Delusion.

Stern is a graduate of Yale University and Yale Law School.

The New York Times, and USA Today.

He is the CEO of Rockwood Leadership, a Washington, DC-based thought leadership company.

Stern previously served as CEO of National Public Radio. During his tenure, NPR's audience more than doubled, and it received a record 36 Peabody Awards, recognition for excellence in digital and public service, as well as expanding NPR Music, mobile offerings, and NPR.org. During a period of financial challenges in the news industry, Stern led NPR to a period of financial stability, sustainability and growth.

Earlier in his career, Stern held roles in American International Broadcasting and Democratic politics in Washington, including as a senior aide to Senator Daniel Patrick Moynihan and Governor Mario Cuomo.

Shyrise Thompson, Founder & Principal, The Iris Collaborative

Shyrise Thompson brings expertise in patient advocacy, patient recognition, health equity, innovation, workforce development, communications strategy, and nonprofit management. In 2019, she founded the IRIS Collaborative, a consulting practice dedicated to helping clients see the full picture. Prior to that, Shyrise served as Vice President of Patient Engagement at the Alliance for Aging Research, Director of Patient Engagement at the Health Organization's Cancer Center Elimination Initiative, Tapestry Health Ambassador, and Director of Patient Advocacy at the Multiple Myeloma Research Foundation. She has also served as a Patient Advocate

After starting her career on Capitol Hill, she held various frontline roles as a nonprofit Executive Director. Shyrise is a Patient Advocate Foundation Hero, Patient Leader, and Member of the Board of Advisors to the CEO at Susan G. Komen. As a sought-after moderator, storyteller, and producer, her work has been featured in the Washington Business Journal, Essence, O, The Oprah Magazine, and Cancer Health. Shyrise is a graduate of Howard University and Georgetown University. She is a member of the Association of Black Women Physicians (ABWP), the Association of Black Cardiologists (ABWP), and the Women's Health Access Project (WHAP) All Under 40 Leaders in Minority Health and an NMQF Advisory Board Member. Shyrise is also a member of the Association of Clinical Research Professionals (ACRP) and a professional fellowship of the Leadership School of Duke Corporate Education (DCE).

Tim Vaska, Senior Director, Federal Issue Advocacy & Alliance, Genentech

Tim Vaska serves as a senior director on the Genentech Issue Advocacy team, leading federal policy efforts to support the company's mission to discover, develop, and deliver innovative medicines for patients. Through innovation, access, and affordability. Tim has more than two decades of experience in government relations and public affairs, including senior roles in the private sector and on Capitol Hill. His professional experiences include roles at Gilead Sciences, PhRMA, and the American Cancer Society.